Organized Labor Asks Probe Of Letter Campaign For Change In Measures.

WASHINGTON — Sen. Elmer Thomas, chairman of a senate committee which has conducted a four-day hearing into war production today said that the results of the inquiry dooms all possibility of congress enacting any labor legislation.

"There won't be any legislation on strikes or suspension of the 40-hour week unless things take a turn for the worse," he said.

House sponsors of drastic legislation, including suspension of the 40-hour week and banning of the closed shop, refused to give up in their fight.

"The testimony before our committee has made a good showing for legislation," said Chairman Vinson (D.), Georgia, of the house naval affairs committee.

Confident that the drive for legislation, which brought a deluge of letters and telegrams from the country, has been stopped, leaders of organized labor demanded an investigation of propaganda.

Sen. Truman (D.), Missouri, chairman of the senate defense committee, said the committee will weigh a request by Sen. Maybank (D.), South Carolina, that it inquire into organized protests against labor conditions and demands for legislation. Thomas, however, refused to investigate alleged propaganda.

"All officials from the president down oppose legislation and it is not possible," said Thomas, who heads a senate appropriations military sub-committee. "It is felt that legislation would disrupt production. The testimony shows that the 40-hour week law does not restrict labor to 40 hours, that strikes have about disappeared, and that production is high. Of course the situation is not 100 per cent."

He said, however, that if either labor or management fails to "toe the mark," congress will act.

President Phillip Murray of CIO and William Green of the A. F. of L. pressed congress for an inquiry into an alleged organized movement to discredit labor and force restrictive legislation.

Murray charged that Thomas Wallner, Nashville, Tenn., president of the Southern States Industrial council, asked manufacturers to promote mass meetings to advocate anti-labor legislation. He charged him also with attacking President Roosevelt in the circular.

Green declared that the propaganda movement started in Oklahoma, and is fostered by anti-union interests.

Two major problems discussed in the hearings of the Thomas subcommittee, however, remained unsolved. They are the proposal to abolish double time on Sundays and adoption of incentive, or bonus and piece-work plans, to speed production.

WASHINGTON—(INS)—President Roosevelt today ordered federal seizure of the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad.

The action was taken in an executive order by Mr. Roosevelt directing Joseph B. Eastman, head of the office of defense transportation, to "take immediate possession" of the road's property and operate it.

The president's move culminated a dispute involving a three-months' strike on the road.

The strike on the 239-mile railroad involves 104 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, who walked out on Dec. 28.

Spring Makes Dreary Bow; Colder Weather On Way

Longer Days Ahead As Winter Season Leaves With Sunny Farewell; Temperature Stays In 50's.

Spring, which arrived at 2:11 a. m. today as the sun crossed the equator on its annual journey northward, made a dreary and inauspicious debut as compared with winter's sunny farewell yesterday.

The weatherman quickly dashed cold water on Mansfielders' hopes for anything better today by predicting colder weather tonight. He said the rain probably will end this afternoon, however.

There was something of that "spring feeling" in the air today despite the rain and fog, for the mercury remained far above freezing last night and by noon was up to 50 degrees. The noon reading equalled yesterday's high which seemed much warmer because the sun was shining.

With the sun just north of the half-way mark in the sky today, the period of daylight will be about equal to the dark. From now until the beginning of summer in June, however, the days will be longer than the nights and soon it won't be dark until 9 p. m. war time.

Today's rain kept some of the reliable signs of spring under cover, but there were still boys playing marbles in vacant lots

ACTS TO EASE DOCTOR CRISIS

State Association Plans For Physician Transfer Where Draft Hits Cities.

The Ohio State Medical association today announced a program designed to safeguard health on the "home front," particularly in cities like Mansfield which face an early loss of many of their physicians to the army.

Association officials at Columbus estimated that 750 Ohio physicians already had been commissioned and that the expanding army would require double that number this year.

Some cities such as Mansfield, where the general age level of practicing physicians is below the state average, face the loss of one-half of their doctors, the association reported.

Spokesmen explained the military demands for physicians was so great that most of those in Ohio under 36 years of age and physically fit could look forward to service before year-end.

Of nearly 10,000 physicians surveyed by the association, about 3,600 are under 45 and subject to call for active duty under the se-

Read About Breakfast In School

Mansfielders get things done . . .

One of them, a teacher, decided that some of her junior first grade pupils should have breakfast at school. So, she now prepares food for 20 of them every schoolday morning. It's part of her program of pupil development and you can read about the project and see pictures of it in the Sunday edition.

Two more persons, former Mansfielders, were caught in a blackout in San Francisco with a room full of guests. Nonplussed? Not at all, hosts and guests wrote a song for the occasion. Their story, too, is in the Sunday News-Journal.

He's a Mansfielder in his 80's but he still draws a lively bow on any occasion that requires old-time fiddling, and he has played for dances in this vicinity since he was a mere lad. Read his story tomorrow.

New in the city, but certainly right in the swing of getting things accomplished, is a European industrialist driven out of the Saar who has brought to Mansfield an important process for reclaiming scrap from slag. Meet him in picture and interview in the Sunday edition.

BINGO CAUSES NEW FLURRY AT CITY HALL

Circulars Advertising 'New Big Special Series' Flood City's Downtown.

LOCKE ORDERS PROBE

Tells Chief to Investigate, Make 'Recommendation'; Recalls Earlier Case.

Another official flurry over bingo swept the municipal building today as Mayor W. J. Locke asked Police Chief Thomas M. Bell to investigate the distribution of hundreds of bingo circulars throughout the city last night to make "a recommendation."

Hundreds of theater-goers left the shows last night to find orange, red and green circulars advertising a "new big special" bingo series to be started at the Social Club, 21½ East Second street, little more than a block from police headquarters. Residents also found the handbills littering their porches.

Police Chief Bell, aroused by what was called the "nose-thumbing action," approached Mayor Locke with one of the circulars. Locke said he told Bell to "investigate the matter and to return a recommendation."

Last fall, when one of the West Fourth street bingo palace operators was ordered to move "off the ground floor," Mayor Locke issued a statement that "gambling will be stopped wherever it can be seen."

Mayor Locke made this statement when Mrs. Vera Shull, who operated a game at 40 West Fourth street, was told by police "to get off the ground floor." Mrs. Shull moved her bingo session to the second floor of a building at 28 East Third street until recently when she moved back to her West Fourth street location. Since that time, however, the front of the building at 40 West Fourth street has been renovated so that passers-by on the street can not look in and see the game in progress.

The Social club is located on the second floor of a building at 21½ East Second street. Lloyd F. Campbell, operator of the club, said today that he "was closing for redecoration and expected to be closed for at least a week."

Campbell said that his "redecoration" was prompted by a friendly tip from a policeman last night after the circulars had been distributed. Campbell said that he had been unofficially "called up on the carpet" and told to "go easy on bingo."

Chief Bell said that when he contacted Campbell this morning that the operator told him he had decided to "fold up" and would stop his bingo sessions.

Chief Bell said that he didn't know which patrolmen approached Campbell with the warning last night. Two police captains in charge during the afternoon and night shifts said that none of their men had contacted Campbell to their knowledge.

The attitude of the department was expressed by several patrolmen with one putting his opinion this way:

U. S. Planes Take Lead In Smashing Big Warship Near Australia as Philippine Army Inflicts Heavy Loss on Foe Near Zamboanga Naval Base.

BULLETIN

CANBERRA, Australia — (AP) — Prime Minister Curtin announced in a second communique today that two enemy cruisers were damaged in addition to one believed sunk in yesterday's raid on the harbor at Rabaul, New Britain.

(By United Press)

Australia thundered a welcome to Gen. Douglas MacArthur today and Allied bombers echoed the cheers with attacks on Japanese warships and invasion bases.

American and Filipino troops under Gen. Jonathan Wainwright in the Philippines made a surprise attack on the Japanese troops on the island of Mindanao, inflicting "heavy casualties" near the naval base of Zamboanga.

In a spreading battle on the northern approaches to Australia, Allied airplanes knocked out a second 10,000-ton Japanese cruiser at Rabaul on New Britain island and battered the enemy-held base at Saumliki on Yamenda island, in the Timor group, 225 miles north of the "down under" continent.

With U. S. flying fortresses again taking the lead, the big Allied bombers fought off repeated enemy pursuit plane attacks and smashed at the cruiser until she burst into flames and was seen going down.

Previously, a heavy Japanese cruiser attacked by flying fortresses had been reported vanished and presumably sunk, raising this week's toll of cruisers to two at Rabaul and boosting to 25 the toll of enemy ships sunk in the island area.

The Melbourne radio indicated a third enemy cruiser had been hit but this was not confirmed and may have been due to confusion.

The Japanese also were striking hard in the battle for air control over the approaches to Australia. Japanese planes attacked Broome and Derby, on the northwest coast, dropping 50 bombs at Broome where one person was killed but failing in their raid on Derby.

On New Guinea island, indirect Axis reports said that the Japanese were extending their land invasion and one German broadcast claimed they had crossed the 110-mile wide island arm to the Gulf of Papua on the south coast, west of Port Moresby.

If this Axis report is confirmed—it had not yet been even indicated in dispatches from Australia—it might mean an early land and sea attack on Port Moresby, which the Japanese want to use for an invasion base against the north Australian coast.

In this connection, Axis broadcasts again were reporting Japanese naval operations allegedly directed toward the Australian coast and toward the Solomon and Fiji

STIRRING: Officer Tells of MacArthur Trip Past Jap Lines

(By United Press)

GEN. M'ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Australia—An American officer who accompanied him told today how Gen. Douglas MacArthur broke through the Japanese blockade of the Philippines by speedboat and airplane to reach Australia.

It was one of the most stirring adventures of the war.

MacArthur with his party of 20, including his wife and their four-year-old son, shot past a Japanese destroyer in their four PT-type mosquito boats to reach a secret rendezvous with the planes that brought them to Australia.

They not only eluded the Japanese fleet and the Japanese air force which rules the skies over the South Seas but made their landings on their relays through the Philippines at points held by MacArthur's own men, for it was made plain that the Philippines even outside Batan have not been conquered.

Brig. Gen. J. H. Casey, chief of United States army engineers in the Philippines, who made the trip with MacArthur, told the story.

In the four 70-foot speed boats, the 21 veterans of the Batan campaign, officers and men and MacArthur's wife and son, planned to make all their stops by day and travel by night, until they reached the rendezvous in which American flying fortress planes were to pick them up.

On the first night one of the motorboats was disabled. It took 40 minutes to get it running again, and the time schedule for the break-through had been worked out almost to the second.

The result was that the party, trying to make up for the lost time, took the risk by traveling part of the way by daylight in Japanese controlled seas and

STORMING: Russians Battle Nazis Around Four Key Points

(By Associated Press)

Russia's armies, crowding the Germans off balance before Adolf Hitler can launch his spring offensive, were reported storming against four key Nazi bases on the 1,200-mile front today, and a Vichy radio broadcast declared Soviet troops had already fought their way into Staraya Russa.

Other Russian assaults were aimed at Bryansk, Kharkov and Taganrog.

Staraya Russa, 150 miles below Leningrad, is the base headquarters of the trapped German 16th army which has been cut off for weeks in the frozen marshlands around Lake Ilmen.

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters acknowledged the increasing violence of Russian assaults, declaring that Nazi troops had beaten off six fierce attacks yesterday southeast of Lake Ilmen, in the Staraya Russa sector, but gave no details on the fate of Staraya Russa itself.

"Many dead were left on the field and numerous prisoners were taken," a German comunique said.

The high command also conceded that the Russians were pressing the offensive in the Crimea, in the Donets river basin of the Ukraine, and on the central (Moscow) and northern (Leningrad) fronts.

From Vichy, Leningrad and Moscow came details—reports that Red army troops had penetrated Kharkov fortifications but were forced back; that there was hard fighting north of Taganrog, Azov sea anchor of the German lines; that 455 Germans were killed and

Staraya Russa, 150 miles below Leningrad, is the base headquarters of the trapped German 16th army which has been cut off for weeks in the frozen marshlands around Lake Ilmen.

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters acknowledged the increasing violence of Russian assaults, declaring that Nazi troops had beaten off six fierce attacks yesterday southeast of Lake Ilmen, in the Staraya Russa sector, but gave no details on the fate of Staraya Russa itself.

"Many dead were left on the field and numerous prisoners were taken," a German comunique said.

The high command also conceded that the Russians were pressing the offensive in the Crimea, in the Donets river basin of the Ukraine, and on the central (Moscow) and northern (Leningrad) fronts.

From Vichy, Leningrad and Moscow came details—reports that Red army troops had penetrated Kharkov fortifications but were forced back; that there was hard fighting north of Taganrog, Azov sea anchor of the German lines; that 455 Germans were killed and

Mansfielders get things done . . .

One of them, a teacher, decided that some of her junior first grade pupils should have breakfast at school. So, she now prepares food for 20 of them every schoolday morning. It's part of her program of pupil development and you can read about the project and see pictures of it in the Sunday edition.

Two more persons, former Mansfielders, were caught in a blackout in San Francisco with a room full of guests. Nonplussed? Not at all, hosts and guests wrote a song for the occasion. Their story, too, is in the Sunday News-Journal.

He's a Mansfielder in his 80's but he still draws a lively bow on any occasion that requires old-time fiddling, and he has played for dances in this vicinity since he was a mere lad. Read his story tomorrow.

New in the city, but certainly right in the swing of getting things accomplished, is a European industrialist driven out of the Saar who has brought to Mansfield an important process for reclaiming scrap from slag. Meet him in picture and interview in the Sunday edition.

GEN. JOHNSON: Showdown Fight on War Profits Nears

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—There is little doubt that the most powerful single individual in the curious, twisted, pretzel-like form of our overhead war control is Harry Hopkins. His official position is not conspicuous but his influence is all-pervading.

This is perfectly obvious in the off-hand remarks of the chief actors on either our military or our productive effort, and frequently on the political side, when confronted with a great question for decision. "I'll have to see Harry about that" or "let me get Hopkins' reaction."

Gen. Johnson.

The man is weak and sickly. In such time as he does not spend in hospitals he lives at the White House. A fiery and determined will-power and a devoted heart drives an almost shattered body to incredible extremes of effort.

It recalls several historical parallels of the past and two or three in this administration. But the parallels are not perfect.

Cardinal Richelieu simply was the government of France as Woolsey was of England. But they were greedy, money-mad men intent primarily on their own interests.

Such Hopkins is not. He is a personal idolator of Franklin Roosevelt and a social worker so glorified as almost to be a socialist.

He believes in "making America over" by squandering its wealth.

He has already spent more of the people's money than any human being who ever lived, and he is in a position now to spend more and do it more quickly.

In the political aspect of this activity he has been ruthless and not too frank, as his unsuccessful efforts to deny political use of WPA money charged by Reporter Tom Stokes showed upon investigation by a congressional committee. But nobody ever even suspected that a nickel of these billions stuck to his fingers. He is as poor as a church mouse.

The parallels in this administration have been Louise Howe, and, to an extent, Tommy Corcoran. Louis was actuated solely by an even greater personal devotion and submersion of self. But he was so far more practical that his death was a national loss.

Another outstanding apparent parallel was Colonel House with Woodrow Wilson. But the colonel was a Richelieu reincarnated. His plottings at Versailles are supposed to have wrecked the League of Nations.

Harry Hopkins will never be charged with lack of devotion, but his strange position—his intimacy and influence with supreme authority—are now far greater, although somewhat of the same nature, than as Col. House's were then.

It hardly needs to be said that this kind of unofficial assistant presidency is bad business. Nobody ever elected Hopkins to any office. He has no public responsibility notwithstanding that he has second to the greatest public authority in the nation.

He is no better fitted to have the greatest, if not the controlling voice in selecting chieftains, such as Donald Nelson, than he is to dictate the distribution of munitions as between our own forces and those of the rest of the non-Axis world—and he is not fitted by training or experience for either decision.

Many of the delays, false starts, bad selections of leaders and subsequent blunderings in getting our production machinery attuned for war over the past two and a half years are attributable directly to Hopkins.

It does little good to shift the same bishops, rooks, knights, and pieces around on the chess board if their slogan of action still remains:

"I'll have to see what H. H. Thinks about that first."

ORDERS READY TO ELIMINATE CIVIL BUILDING

WPB Prepares to Freeze All Plumbing Materials For Defense Construction.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — All private and non-defense residential and industrial construction will be eliminated under a series of orders scheduled to be issued by the war department board within a week or 10 days, it was learned today.

W. W. Timmis, chief of the WPA plumbing and heating branch, disclosed that the orders already have been prepared and are in the proces sof obtaining final clearance.

The plumbing and heating branch, he said, has prepared orders to "freeze" current stocks and prevent the use of manufacture of plumbing and heating equipment except for defense housing and defense plant construction.

Provisions will be made, however, for essential repairs.

The orders, Timmis said, are aimed at conservation of critical metals and conversion of part of the $1,000,000,000 plumbing and heating industry to production of war materials.

At the same time, it was reported that a new construction division will be set up within the WPB. The new division, it was said, will be headed by W. V. Kahler, present chief of the construction branch of the production division, and will embrace all construction activities within the WPB.

The new unit reportedly will administer the stop-construction program and will direct future building, including defense construction, through priority ratings. Stocks of building supplies in non-defense areas, it was said, will be whittled down to the bare amount sufficient for repair and maintenance and the excess drawn off into defense areas.

All construction during 1941, both public and private, totaled approximately $14,000,000,000 while defense housing and defense plant construction this year is expected to aggregate $13,000,000,000.

WPB spokesmen said cast-iron bathtubs may be banned in defense homes and showers substituted and vitreous china substituted in the manufacture of lavatories and other plumbing articles.

FOUR DIE WHEN PLANE EXPLODES

Army Bomber Attempts Forced Landing, Crashes Into Cluster of Trees.

(By International News Service)

GREENFIELD, Ind.—At least four and possible six airmen early today were reported dead in the crash of a twin-engined army bomber which exploded north of Greenfield last night.

The bomber, out of Patterson Field at Dayton, was on a routine flight when it ran into trouble and, while passing over Anderson, Ind., radioed for lights so that it might land. Automobiles were hurriedly clustered around a small field to light it with their headlights.

The field apparently was insufficient, for the bomber veered away and later, over the farm of Charles Gant, began to drop flares in another attempt to land. It struck a cluster of trees in the attempt, and then exploded as it struck the ground.

The victims were Lieutenants Paul F. Hawkins, Ponca City, Okla; James P. Van Story, Lincolntown, N. C.; and Lawrence Rux, Henderson, N. C., and Sgt. Robert W. Morgan, Uniontown, Pa.

The explosion scattered wreckage over an area of 15 acres. One body was found 200 feet from the fuselage, which caught fire and burned. Windows in a farm house a mile from the scene were broken. Four bodies were brought to Greenfield, 20 miles from Indianapolis.

OHIO FATHER, TWO SONS ARE ALL SERGEANTS IN SAME ARMY SPIRIT

(By Associated Press)

INDIANTOWN GAP Pa.—Yell "Sergeant Osman!" at this military reservation and three Sergeant Osmans come running—father and two sons.

The Osman army has been operating in the same company for the last year and a half and all three figure soldiering is not too much different than life at the family home in Manchester, O.

"We took orders from dad at home and we don't mind doing it here," said Sergeant James Osman, 20. His 19-year-old brother, Sergeant William Osman, nodded.

"Right," declared Staff Sergeant Leroy Osman, their 41-year-old father. "They mind me now the same as when they were kids."

The elder Osman—most everyone here calls him "Dad" — has seen 18 years of army life and he's all for his sons following in his footsteps.

"It's a good life," he said, "and is runs in the family. My grandfather commanded a company in the Civil war and my great-grandfather led an outfit in the War of 1812."

Army routine hasn't completely shut off the Osman boys' home life.

Their mother has spent most of her married life following, first, her husband, and, now, her sons from post to post. She lives in the town nearest the camps.

"She's a real army wife," her husband said.

There's a large possibility that "Dad" will be outranked by son William in the next few months. The boy expects to leave soon for the officers' training school at Fort Benning, Ga.

"That'll be fine," said Staff Sergeant Osman, "but I'm not much afraid he'll be 'pulling rank' on me. The army rarely sends a non-com back to his old company after he's been commissioned."

"It's possible, though," he mused. "Then Bill will be giving me orders."

QUOTA FIXED

Six Mobile Feeding Units to Be Set Up In Area.

Salvation Army officials of the Northeastern Ohio district, conferring in Cleveland yesterday in regard to the establishment of emergency feeding and housing stations set a quota for the Mansfield, Mt. Vernon and Ashland area that calls for six mobile feeding units.

Adjt. Paul Hoffman of the Mansfield Salvation Army, who heads a five-county area, said that of this number, Mansfield was to establish four mobile units and Mt. Vernon and Ashland one each.

While the organization leaders were urged to make adequate preparation for an emergency, Hoffman said they were also warned to avoid any possible waste and to keep preparations on a conservative scale.

Brig. William Spatig presided at the meeting and in setting up temporary quotas also instructed this area to obtain 100 convalescent robes to store for emergency use.

Laff-a-Day

"Now, Henry, we're not wasting money because the electric heater has been on all day. It's not ours, I borrowed it from next door!"

Louis Bromfield, Mansfield author-farmer, lunched with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and several of her children in New York the other day. In Mrs. Roosevelt's column, she states: "My children and I, who were lunching together yesterday, quite unexpectedly met Louis Bromfield. This led to much exciting and vehement talk among Franklin, Jr., Ethel, Mr. Bromfield and myself. It is a delightful combination to be a farmer and writer. The kind of farm Mr. Bromfield runs must be an exciting adventure. Farming on a scale large enough to have the workers on the place your partners and really make it a business. On one thing, at least, Mr. Bromfield and I did agree, in spite of many arguments. We decided that to work on something you enjoyed was an essential part of life, that the only real security which anybody has in this world is his own earning capacity."

Here's someone who's really anxious to get into the Army Air corps. C. B. Alwine, 580 Park avenue west, took his physical exam for the Air corps in Columbus yesterday and was informed, to his dismay, that he was color-blind. He requested a re-examintion on that point, then promptly hurried to the Navy and Marine recruiting offices. At each he took the color-blindness test, and passed each with flying colors. The Air corps agreed to a re-examination, and now Alwine is awaiting final word on whether he passed.

BUYS BONDS

UERMW Members Decide on Monthly Purchases.

Members of Local 711, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers have joined Mansfield organizations supporting the national defense program by purchasing U. S defense bonds and pledging additional purchases each month.

Joe W. Piper, office manager, announced today that the union had purchased $4,000 worth of bonds and that it had pledged itself to purchase at least $100 worth monthly.

Piper said that the union intended to purchase bonds whenever possible and stated that its members had already made individual purchases running into the thousands of dollars.

"In addition to working in defense production and sending some of our fellow-workers for military service," said Piper, "the union wants to put its savings at the call of the government."

ARMY, NAVY REQUESTED TO OFFER PLANS

Congress Committee Acts as Departments Oppose Flat 6 Per Cent Limit.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — On two fronts congress headed today toward a showdown fight over the question of war profits.

At the request of the house naval affairs committee, the army and navy were to submit plans for drastically limiting returns on their contracts.

At the same time, the house ways and means committee, which is considering the $7,610,000,000 new tax bill, faced increasing demands that all possible "loopholes" be plugged so that virtually all excess corporate profits will be drained off in taxes.

Request by the naval group for army-navy data on the matter came after representatives of the two departments declared that they favored profit limitations but opposed a bill which would place on them a flat ceiling of six per cent of the cost of a contract.

Undersecretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal and Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson both termed this plan unworkable and impracticable. They suggested that profits could better be curbed through tax laws than through direct legislation.

"We have come up with an indictment, showing that many firms have made excessive profits," Naval Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.), said, referring to a report on the matter recently made public by his committee. "We also have proposed a remedy—the six per cent limitation. If the army and navy do not like this remedy, it is up to them to propose a better one."

Vinson said that attempts to curb profits through tax laws has not worked, "because there is nothing to prevent companies from padding up their expenses and thus concealing profits."

Members of the ways and means committee, meanwhile, who in the last analysis must deal with the situation, said they were receiving increasing demands to tighten up the taxes on excess profits.

Most said that when the new revenue bill is written it probably will concentrate on this form of taxation. The treasury has recommended that most of the increases in corporation taxes come from increased levies on normal income rather than on the so-called excess profits.

Suspect Held In Two-Day Series Of Thefts Here

One suspect was under arrest today in a series of petit thefts and burglaries reported to police during the past two days.

The man in custody is being questioned about the theft of $46 from the truck of a Nickles Bakery company driver yesterday afternoon.

A. M. Lawrence, Norwalk, truck driver reported yesterday that a money bag containing $46 had been taken from his truck while he was making arrangements to have his truck refueled at the bakery garage on Park avenue east.

Nick Kunz, 21 Orchard street, told police this morning that burglars had broken into his home and had taken $2 in change. Kunz said the burglars entered by breaking a window at the rear of the home and unlocking it.

Also reported stolen was another automobile spotlight, the third taken in the last two days. Roland O. Morehead, 124 Bowman street, reported that a spotlight had been taken off his car while it was parked near his home.

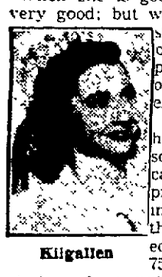
BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD, one of the most artful word-parriers who ever glided across a stage, is also the actress most like the little girl who had the curl in the middle of her forehead. "When she is good, she is very, very good; but when she is bad, she is horrid"—or at least, unpredictable, and often in the presence of the press.



Kilgallen

As a result of her colorful personality—and because a radio program is paying her weekly the unprecedented amount of $2,750 for 11½ minutes' work, a national magazine has assigned a writer to do an article on Tallu.

The writer contacted the show's press agent to arrange an appointment, and the press agent approached La Bankhead with some trepidation. But Tullulah was in a sweet Southern-belle mood for the moment, and said to send the reporter to interview her immediately.

They spent two hours together. The press agent was very happy.

P. S.—"How did you make out?" he asked the reporter later. "I don't know," the fellow replied. "But she got enough material out of me to write a book!"

Vivian Vance is a beautiful young blond from New Mexico. Her fellow citizens of Albuquerque discovered that she had theatrical talent, so they all chipped in to finance her way to New York. Vivian didn't have too hard a time finding work on Broadway. Vinton Freedly gave her a chorus job in one of his musicals to start with, advanced her to small speaking roles the next season, and finally let her become understudy to the star Ethel Merman.

But Vivian could never get beyond the understudy stage under the Freedly banner. So she decided to give up musical comedy and become a dramatic actress.

She toiled through a summer of cowbarn theatricals and learned enough to get a supporting role with Gertrude Lawrence in "Skylark." And last summer she finally realized her ambition to be a leading lady, she played opposite Edward Everett Horton in "Springtime For Henry" in California.

P. S.—Vinton Freedly saw the first performance of "Springtime For Henry," and went backstage with a contract and a fountain pen. Vivian Vance is now back in musical comedy—playing one of the three frolicking wives in Freedly's hit, "Let's Face It."

When Clifford Odets wrote "Golden Boy" a few seasons back, John Garfield fell in love with it, and with the role of the prize-fighter-violinist — the hero. But when the play was cast, Luther Adler got that part, and Garfield had to be content with another role.

So, naturally, when he went to Hollywood he was anxious to play the film version of "Golden Boy," but the producers thought he wasn't "quite the type," and William Holden played Golden Boy No. 2.

Garfield is in the East now, and last week he appeared on the CBS Playhouse. He cornered the producer, Charles Martin, and insisted that he play the prize-fighter in "Golden Boy." Martin acquiesced, and Garfield was a great hit in the role.

P. S.—Martin and whole radio crew were frantic when Garfield disappeared after the first broadcast and failed to return until two minutes before the repeat broadcast. Garfield explained nonchalantly: "I went over to Madison Square Garden to take a look at the fighters." Then he grinned, "After seeing the beating they took—maybe I'm NOT the type."

CURB LIFTED

Typewriter Rentals Permitted Under New U. S. Order.

Mansfield typewriter firms have been advised there are no longer any restrictions on renting of used typewriters, but rentals are on a month-to-month basis and are subject to call by order of the War Production Department.

Used typewriters may be purchased if authorized by the rationing board after April 13. Purchase is open to prime contractors, government agencies, or firms doing 70 per cent defense work.

Overhauls and repairs may be made to any typewriter furnished but the information received by firms here is to the effect that repair parts and rubber cylinders may be placed only on machines being used by defense industries.

Pending receipt of the social security board's approval of the revised plan, the state had been paying the entire pension cost.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The navy department today revealed that another large U. S. merchant ship had been torpedoed off the Atlantic coast.

Details of the attack were not disclosed, but it was presumed that the vessel was the victim of a Nazi submarine.

Name of the ship was withheld by the navy for reasons of security and it was not revealed whether or not the ship was sunk.

4 ESCAPE IN 4-CAR CRASH

Four persons escaped injury late yesterday in a three-car collision on U. S. Route 42, one half mile south of Mansfield, state highway patrolmen reported.

The cars were driven by Harold V. Kurtz, 21, of 168 North Main street, Jesse Swanson, 48, of Columbus, and John W. Smith, 38, of Lexington.

The accident occurred, patrolmen said, when the automobile driven by Kurtz crashed into the rear of the Smith and Swanson cars while Smith was making a right hand turn off the highway. Swanson was attempting to pass the Smith vehicle at the time.

Flames Hit War Factory at Detroit; Machinery to Be Saved.

DETROIT—(INS)—A two-alarm fire which destroyed the Walter Machine and Screw company plant, which has been producing war material, was blamed by firemen today on a spark from an electric motor.

Company officials said much of the machinery could be salvaged and production resumed "within a few weeks." Only the walls of the building were left standing, however.

but it depends upon the administration as to what limits we go to. Trying to break up bingo as an individual would only get one policeman a lot of headaches and possibly dismissal."

There are city ordinances prohibiting bingo. City council has taken little action on gambling legislation during the past 20 or 30 years but ordinances barring such games are still on the books.

Section 103 on Gambling says: "It shall be unlawful for any person to play at any game, whatsoever, for any sum of money or other property of any value."

Other sections on gambling give police the power to break into any place where any gambling is being carried on, to confiscate the apparatus and to impose a fine of not more than $100 on persons playing or allowing gambling operations.

Edward H. Felton, Mansfield, today had been named chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the dinner. Assisting him will be John C. Friday and Carl Stewart.

McColloch, member of the advisory council of the Ohio Conservation commission, is a prominent writer and lecturer on outdoor life. He will show color movies of big game hunting and trout and salmon fishing in Canada and pheasant hunting in Ohio at the meeting here.

Bromfield has lectured before a number of Ohio clubs and organizations on soil conservation and means of providing cover for wildlife on Ohio farms.

While the majority of the 500 sportsmen and wildlife enthusiasts expected at the April 16 meeting will be Richland countians, Ensminger said a number of sportsmen from other north central Ohio counties have indicated they will attend.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, MARCH 21, 1942.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and remember to keep speed within forty miles an hour to save tires.

Bingo bugs are quite exasperated because this popular (but keep it out of sight) pastime wasn't accorded an OCD co-ordinator.

American soldiers serving in that area are forbidden to marry Australian girls—so the sweetheart back home is relieved of at least one worry.

Sidewalks--Remember About Them?

SIDEWALKS, to which little attention has been paid in recent years, are again coming into use as more people are taking on the habit of walking short distances instead of going in the car.

A short walk on practically any residential street in Mansfield will give a clear impression of what scant heed has been given by many property owners to the city ordinance that reads: "It shall be the duty of every owner of any lot or parcel of land in the city to keep the sidewalks, curbing and gutter in front of their premises . . . constantly in good repair . . ."

An earlier section of the same ordinance provides that all sidewalks "shall be of either flagstone or cement."

Use of flagstone for sidewalks has been "out" for many years in this area but some of these are still in service in older parts of the city, and, except in instances where stones have become askew, or heaved up by tree roots, are meeting pedestrian requirements.

Less uniformity marked the experimental stages of cement sidewalk construction and these are found around Mansfield in various stages of disintegration, with some crumbled to an extent that makes them scarcely identifiable as a walk.

Any considerable resumption of walking will result in sidewalk repairs and replacements becoming a subject of lively interest in Mansfield—as you will note when you are taking that walk this evening or strolling to and from church tomorrow.

Observe Girl Scout Anniversary

MANSFIELD Girl Scouts, to the number of 375, are just now centering attention on the 30th anniversary of the start of the Girl Scout movement in the United States and a program to be given Monday evening in the Park Avenue Baptist church will give emphasis to the varied activities of this fine organization of Mansfield girls.

As is natural at this time, the need for civilian participation in the national war effort is being stressed in the Girl Scout program and many opportunities are being found for members to learn how to do the things that will be helpful in coming weeks and months.

Aside from the war phase of their activities, however, the Girl Scout program takes a long-range view of a future nation at peace and looks to the advantage of present-day girls growing into womanhood with recollection of the training and inspiration provided by their association with Scouting.

With increased numbers of Girl Scouts in Mansfield this organization also opens opportunities for women interested in this work, and suited for it, to devote a part of their time to the Girl Scout organization—assured that their service will pay big dividends in satisfaction over performance of a worthwhile service.

Kite-Flying Time Is Here

WHEN the kites come to life in the sky—it's spring. Crocuses and robins in the north, azaleas in the south, marbles everywhere are among the well-known signs. But kites are the surest.

Modern times have brought dangers to kite-flying. West Texas Utilities officials are issuing warnings to children. Fly the kite with fun, they say, but with safety, too. These are the things they urge:

"Watch out when crossing streets with a kite in tow. Don't get run over.

"Keep to the open spaces and away from wires of all types. Don't use metal on any part of the kite. Don't use string with wire in it.

"Keep the kite dry. Don't climb poles if the kite gets caught in wires."

The W. T. U. explains that serious, even fatal accidents have resulted from kites coming in contact with high tension wires. Its authorities want children kept safe.

Benjamin Franklin used a kite to find out that lightning and electricity were the same. He learned also some of the dangers of kite-flying. But he didn't have high-tension wires to contend with, and today's children do.

Russia's Anonymous Heroes

THE HEROES of this war are largely anonymous. Even the generals commanding important sectors are not always known to fame. No publicity, for instance, has been given to the defender of Sebastopol.

Years ago it was different. In the Crimean war Sebastopol defended itself for eleven months against the combined attack of the British and the French. It was well known then that the tenacity and skill of this defense were due to the Russian engineer and soldier Todleben. Even though Sebastopol eventually had to yield, Todleben won such fame that a quarter of a century later, when Russia was getting into difficulties in the Russo-Turkish war of 1878, public opinion forced his recall from the retirement into which an unfriendly czar had forced him. Once again he came up to expectations.

Russia has many heroic generals today, apparently gaining even greater success than their predecessors.

Little Metal for License Plates

WHETHER Ohio motorists are to receive one or two license plates next year—or small "date tabs" to attach to 1942 plates—has not yet been definitely determined . . . nor is there need for worry about it just now.

State officials had decided on a one-plate policy but it now appears that WPB prohibits use of more than 10 per cent, by weight, of the customary number of plates.

More important at this time is that motorists get their 1942 license plates as long as possible before the April 1 deadline and meet the 1943 situation when it arrives.

Viewing the steady reduction in use of private cars, it is Harry Wade, in the Detroit News, who decides that "the outlook is omnibus."

FREEDOM IS WORTH ALL IT COSTS

Must Plan for Post-War Future

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

COMPLAINING bitterly of the waste involved in any advance consideration of post-war conditions, one of my readers sends me a note, urging me to cut all such stuff out, since our present job is to win, with no worry as to the future whenever we find ourselves in its midst.

I've seen and heard approximately the same criticism before. I've had 'em addressed to myself and I know of others who've received 'em, too. The critics' thesis is that stewing over prospects, after we get back onto a peacetime basis, simply distracts our attention from the task immediately in hand, that we shouldn't direct so much as a thought in any divergent direction.

All I have to say, in answer, is that British Prime Minister Winston Churchill doesn't agree with the folk who take this view.

He told John Bull's parliament the other day that he'll shortly submit a plan of "post-war reconstruction," adding that "it's necessary to be prepared for peace," because, when it comes, things undoubtedly will be badly jumbled up and we'll need to be ready to straighten 'em out satisfactorily in hot haste, or we'll verge on being sorry that the war's over, leaving bankruptcies, wholesale unemployment and a perfect epidemic of miscellaneous economic disorganizations on our hands.

I don't believe that President Roosevelt favors present complete disregard of the future, either.

Simultaneous

I don't believe so, for the reason that, about simultaneously with Prime Minister Churchill's talk in the house of commons, the White House announced the conclusion of an agreement, between the United States and Britain "setting forth the general principles for the postwar economic world."

Maybe this was the plan Churchill told the commons he intends to submit to 'em soon. It rather sounded like it.

The pact, as outlined in broad terms, contemplates a far freer international exchange of products than the world's ever had before, presumably with a vast expansion of markets for 'em and a corresponding stimulation of trade, employment and industrial activities of all sorts.

There are plenty more details but that's the nub.

Inasmuch as it's an arrangement that never has been tried hitherto on so large a scale, nobody knows just how it'll work, but it ought to be near-perfection, if economic logic means anything.

That is, it ought to be in the long run. Whether or not it'll prevent a nasty interval of post-war depression, while it's becoming effective, remains to be seen.

It's about the maximum of optimism to think that the whole world can suspend production of everything useful, in favor of purely destructive stuff, and keep it up perhaps for a matter of years, without feeling a subsequent pinch, as to life's normal necessities, for quite a spell.

But who'll be in on the bargain referred to by the White House and possibly by Prime Minister Churchill also?

At today's writing the dicker is described as inclusive only of Uncle Sam and John Bull, over Acting State Secretary Sumner Welles' and Ambassador Lord Halifax's signatures. A great many more nations will have to subscribe to it to make it as comprehensive as it'll need to be.

And The Others?

That's all right. It already is stated that the others will be welcome to join.

It'll pay 'em to do it, too. It's a safe bet that all the Americas and the United Nations generally will fall over one another to get onto the dotted line.

So far, good. The Axis pwers, though?

Once licked, they undoubtedly will be anxious to get in on the deal.

But will the democracies be willing to let THEM in? They'll want to lineup their own democratic bunch, sure. But won't they be pretty sore at Germany, Japan and Italy? How long will it take for that soreness to wear off?

Man About Manhattan

Brickbat Shower

NEW YORK—The strange case of the irate correspondent repeats itself every day. A great many sharply worded notes find their way to this desk. They range in tone from sarcasm to sullen anger. I take solace in the fact that the pen, after all, is not mightier than the sword. Epithets do not hurt me, but sticks and stones could break my bones in a hurry.

Nevertheless, I salute these expressors of opinions which are at variance with my own. Because I find the New York Giants a fit subject for an occasional column is no reason why Mr. James Egar, of Ft. Worth, should feel the same way about the matter. "Why don't you transfer to the sports department," he inquires, "or else stick to Broadway. I get all the baseball I need on the sports pages."

* * *

RECENTLY this corner spoke glowingly of an actor who at one time lived in the midwest. I was promptly assailed by one of his ex-school teachers who suggested that obviously I knew little of real character, as this actor had been a terrible student and possessed no ability, histrionically or otherwise, and it just proved to her satisfaction something she had long suspected, namely, that New York was a gullible place where money pulled the wool over everybody's eyes, and furthermore she got mad everytime she saw the name Broadway.

From time to time, when I pick up gags or jokes in night clubs or cafes, I repeat them, generally giving their source. Of course, most jokes are variations of an old theme applied only to changing circumstances. There is a lady in a coast-wise city who takes delight in brain-picking my column for these jokes. If she has heard them before, or especially if she has used them herself under different circumstances, I am sure to hear about it.

AN EDITOR once wrote me a long, patient letter, pointing out the difference between a cutter and a ship. He had stormed at my own editor without success, he said, more in sorrow than in anger, in an effort to get a little accuracy in the waterfront reports. Having got nowhere, he was coming straight to me. This was a sea-coast editor, who loved ships, and who cringed at hearing their names misused. "You reporters think everything from a row boat to a battleship is a cutter," he said. "I wish you would learn what cutters really are or stop writing about them."

I once said I did not like the Hut-sut song, and 23 people called me a dope. They may have had something there. But that was nothing to the time I confessed to finding no pleasure in listening to Edgar Bergen and his wooden dummy Charley McCarthy. The response to this was enough to make your hair curl. Evidently Edgar and Charley have more friends than even they realize, for which hoo-rah.

Timely Editorial

Don't Throw That Away!

From London comes news that policemen have been instructed to reprimand citizens who throw away even so small a scrap of paper as a cigaret package. Furthermore, a lighter weight paper is to be used for bus transfers and receptacles are provided for used ones so that the paper will not be wasted.

Such frugality is a reminder that Americans are still wasting tons upon tons of useful materials. Because we have always had plenty of everything, most of us have never thought it necessary to save scraps that could be worth only a small fraction of a cent.

Today, it is not so much the monetary value of the article as its potential usefulness to the war effort. Waste paper, for instance, is badly needed in order to make the strawboard containers for shells and bombs.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Flood of Mail Tells Lawmakers What People Are Thinking About

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

NOTHING upsets a congressman like a sack full of angry letters from constituents. During the week the offices of congress were littered with mail sacks.

Rep. Wickersham (D., Okla.) told the house he had received 13,000 letters in five days. One law-maker said the flood of mail was even heavier than the recent one protesting pensions for congressmen.

People "back home" were demanding why U. S. production had not yet meant reinforcements for the Philippine garrison and supplies for an offensive against Japan. Senator Lee (D-Okla) asserted:

"A storm of indignation is rapidly rising in this country. When it hits Washington in all its force it will sweep away every obstacle to our war effort."

Congress Gets Busy.

To head off the storm, Washington began mulling new and drastic laws.

Rep. Smith (D-Va), perennial sponsor of restrictive labor legislation, produced a bill to suspend federal statutes prescribing the 40-hour week and to outlaw the closed shop. He made the bill more inviting to friends of labor by adding a provision imposing a flat 6% limitation on war profits.

At the same time it was reported the president was studying the idea of war time wage control as an anti-inflationary step supplementing the price control law.

But the issue of the 40-hour week produced the most heat.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) told the senate: "Congress will soon realize we can no more win this war with a 40-hour week in the arsenal of democracy than we could with a 40-hour week in the foxholes of Bataan.

FDR's congressional leaders sought to head off action in congress on any program such as Rep. Smith's till they heard from FDR.

Tuesday, after a conference with CIO Chief Murray and AFL Chief Green, FDR made up his mind. He didn't want any legislation immediately on the 40-hour week, he said, because things are going pretty well now.

The president added there has been "an amazing state of public misinformation" about the problem. He said he had received letters from five editors of small newspapers asking why the law did not permit anyone to work more than 40 hours a week.

We all know, he added, that there never was any limit on the work week and that nearly all munitions plants now have much more than a 40-hour week. Some, however, are working only 20 or 30, he went on, because they are unable to obtain materials.

Army, navy and maritime officials backed FDR up, but a house committee proceeded to hold hearings on the Smith bill. Rep. Vinson (D-Ga) introduced a twin bill.

WPB's Quarrel.

Meanwhile WPB was in a stew over the abrupt resignation of Robert R. Guthrie as head of its textiles division. Guthrie huffed off after charging that some of his former associates on WPB were hampering the war program because of their interest in individual industries.

WPB Chief Nelson countercharged Guthrie had engaged in "personal conflicts" with other staff members.

Senator Truman, head of the senate defense investigating committee, said his group would look into Tuffaire Guthrie.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The Capital In Wartime:

The day of the broomstick army is well over. The supply of rifles, I am told, has long since passed the requirements for equipping every man in our rapidly expanding army. It was, therefore, with some consternation that a good many other Washingtonians and I observed two smartly turned-out young privates marching along in front of the White House on Pennsylvania avenue the other afternoon with brooms, at shoulder arms.

For a moment, it appeared that the army was picketing its commander in chief. But near East Executive avenue, the two privates halted, grounded their brooms with perfect precision, and then broke their two-man rank.

It was simply a detail, whose order it was to sweep in and around the sentry boxes that jut out from the iron fence that surrounds the White House.

EMPLOYES of the department of interior who, a few months ago, were saying unkind things about Employer Harold L. Ickes are now practically unanimous in their vote of thanks.

During the threatened gasoline shortage in the eastern states, Ickes conducted a departmental campaign to force his employes to share their cars in going to and from work. In spite of complaints, the idea caught on. By late September, it was estimated that each Interior employe car was carrying an average of 1.6 passengers. Through the winter, car owners who drove to work daily, mapped out pick-up routes and made arrangements with other drivers to exchange rides.

Now, with tire and auto priorities beginning to pinch and a gasoline shortage threatened again the Interior department workers are miles ahead on their share-the-car program and the average figure has almost doubled.

THE cub reporter who learned his news values in peace time would have a bit of heavy going in Washington these days. A four-alarm midtown fire that gutted a three-story furniture building and resulted in seven firemen being overcome and 25 others slightly injured turned up in one of the local papers on page 13, and was given no more prominent display in the opposition sheet.

* * *

LATEST scheme of the racketeers who prey on the war effort is that of men who go about representing themselves as federal "tire inspectors" and either lay the groundwork for "government requisition" of tires on private automobiles or "case the tires" for future thievery.

Leon Henderson's OPA says that the only government tire inspectors at work now are those checking dealers' stocks and there will be ample information given in advance before any others take the field.

Quotes

Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt: "Labor should not give up the standards it has won in peace time because it has an obligation to maintain that peace-time standard for the boys in the army when they get back."

Charles P. Manship, president Southern Newspaper Publishers association: "All over the south there is a growing demand that Congress with or without the blessing of the White House, put an end to strikes in defense plants, put an end to labor union racketeering, put an end to war profiteering, to 40 hours a week, to boondoggling, to 'social gains' as usual."

At Home

Enemies Inside America.

Axis theorists have often hinted that the United States was a pushover for propagandists and spies. But during the week the Axis had evidence that Uncle Sam can get tough, darned tough!

In New York seven convicted Nazi spies were sentenced to federal prison to serve a total of 117 years. The only reason they escaped hanging was that their espionage took place before Dec. 7.

Also in New York Nazi propagandist George Sylvester Viereck was sentenced to the maximum term of two to six years plus $1,500 fine for failing to register with the government the full details of his work on behalf of Germany.

Eighteen enemy aliens, equipped with 23 cameras, 13 short wave radio receivers, six shotguns, were seized by the FBI near Mitchel Field on Long Island.

In Southern California, the FBI rounded up nearly 200 "definitely dangerous" Japanese, including school teachers, Buddhist priests and gardeners.

On Ellis Island the Italian operatic basso, Ezio Pinza, was held as an enemy alien.

College Graduates at 18?

Most college students have been 22 by the time they graduated. Those who went on for professional degrees have studied until they were at least 25. Thus the lawyer or doctor was often 28 before he was established enough to even think about marrying.

The president of Fordham, the Rev. Robert I. Gannon, thinks the whole set-up has been cockeyed.

"If a professional man is to marry before he is 25, and it is to his spiritual advantage and the advantage of society that he should, the bachelor's degree must be a possibility at 18," he said.

His program for graduating collegians at 18 would mean: six years of grammer school; three of high school; three of college.

Already, many colleges have been rearranging their schedules so that the students can graduate at 20. The draft forced this change to shorter vacations and more intensive study.

A Slogan for 1942.

An Iowa doughboy, Martin Treptow, was killed at Chateau-Thierry in 1918. Friends found he had penned this slogan on the flyleaf of his diary:

"America must win this war. Therefore I will work; I will save; I will sacrifice; I will endure; I will fight cheerfully and do my utmost, as if the issue of the whole struggle depended on me alone."

Vice-President Wallace has proposed that all Americans of 1942 adopt Martin's slogan.

Two Who Deserted.

At Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., two youthful cavalry privates, Charlie Lovett and Jim Testerman, decided to run out on Uncle Sam. They beat up a sentry and escaped with two service pistols apiece, forced a cab driver to take them through part of Tennessee.

But as they paused at an all-night cafe in Abingdon, Va., two FBI agents approached. The deserters began shooting. One agent was killed, the other was shot four times in the chest.

A vast manhunt closed in on them, under the personal direction of FBI Chief Hoover. They got no further than an abandoned house at the edge of town. Tear gas forced them to surrender.

Boom In Bikes.

Lucky is the youngster who has a bike that his father isn't coveting. Only two models may be built, both lightweight—one for men and one for women. Bicycles built for two are out, as are children's.

WPB's order permits a 300% increase in the production of adults' bicycles, which means that 756,000 can be made this year. The Bicycle Manufacturing association says there's a demand for many more because of curbs on the sale of autos and auto tires.

Many commuters are riding bicycles to the station to save their auto tires. Parking lots are catering to cyclists. Many of them include a check-up and oiling service.

Abroad

Help for Australia.

Early this week the world was told that American troops "in considerable numbers" had reached Australia, and on Tuesday, also, came news that Gen. Douglas MacArthur had reached Australia from Batan, to be in command of all United Nations forces in the far Pacific east of Singapore.

The Americans had arrived in such numbers that no port in Australia had been large enough to accommodate them so landings were made at several ports. The doughboys had been without news for the entire trip because radios were silenced. They had to wear lifebelts all the time. Warships protecting the convoy successfully fought off four sub attacks.

In Washington it was disclosed that President Roosevelt had directed MacArthur to leave the Philippines a month ago and that the brilliant general had requested a delay until he could perfect arrangements with his Philippine command. He left Batan under the command of Major Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, his right-hand man.

Hitlerian Alibis.

Adolf Hitler went back a long way in history to find a Russian winter colder than the recent one. In his speech last Sunday he blamed his troubles on the worst Russian winter in 140 years. Significantly, the great Napoleon had his disastrous rout 130 years ago.

Was Hitler trying to minimize the present misfortunes by implying that his men had even a tougher winter than Napoleon's?

Also, he alibied that the winter had come weeks earlier than "scientific forecasts led us to expect."

He prophesied that his army would annihilate the Russians but said it would take place this coming summer (rather than spring).

Commenting on the speech U. S. Acting Secretary of State Welles said: "There is implicit in every word and every phrase Hitler's own recognition of his impending downfall. . . ."

MISS JEAN HORCHLER WEDS FRED ZUMSTEG

Rev. Paul H. Saleste Performs Quiet Ceremony for Couple Friday Afternoon Before Altar of St. John's Evangelical Church.

'N AN impressive but quiet ceremony Friday at 4 p. m. in St. John's Evangelical church Miss Jean Horchler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Horchler, Lexington avenue road, became the bride of Lieut. Fred Zumsteg of Camp Gordon, Augusta, Ga., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Zumsteg, Chicago, Ill. Rev. Paul H. For her wedding the bride wore a powder blue wool costume suit with brown accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of white gladoli. Mrs. Richard Nixon, sister of the bride, served as the matron-of-honor. She wore a powder blue tailored suit with brown accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Mr. Horchler gave his daughter in marriage and Mr. Zumsteg served as best man.

Mrs. Fred Lewis, organist, played nuptial music preceding and during the ceremony. Some of her selections were "O Promise Me," "I Love You Truly," "Ave Maria" and "Ich Liebe Dich." Mrs. Horchler appeared at her daughter's wedding in a dusty rose wool tailored suit, brown accessories and a shoulder corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Zumsteg was attired in a navy blue net frock with white accessories and a corsage of carnations.

Following the ceremony dinner was served to Lieut. and Mrs. Zumsteg and the immediate families at the Southern hotel. The long table was attractively decorated with white stock and pink carnations and centered with a three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal couple. The couple is now on short wedding trip. For traveling Mrs. Zumsteg wore a navy blue street length frock with accessories in a matching color.

The bride was graduated from Lexington high school and attended the National College of Education in Evanston, Ill. Lieut. Zumsteg was graduated from the Kansas City schools and the University of Illinois. He is a member of Delta Upsilon fraternity. After March 25 the couple will reside in Augusta, Ga.

KINGS ROW + + + + +

By Henry Bellamann

(Copyright, 1942.)

THE STORY: Schoolroom in smalltown Kings Row brings together orphaned Parris Mitchell, 12 and foreign-looking, who lives with his French grandmother; Drake McHugh, 13, and "all boy"; beautiful Cassandra Tower; tomboy Randy Monaghan. Teacher Sally Venable muses on sharp social lines that will groove their lives as they grow up.

* * *

CHAPTER II

There was one individual in that noisy playground crowd who felt something of this social difference, and who thought about it. That was Parris Mitchell.

Parris was, in his own dark way, a thoughtful boy. He was standing a little apart and was dreamily half thinking something of Miss Venable's thought. Inside they were all—well, kind of alike. But outside—here, everything was different.

It seemed, as he thought about it, to have something to do with a feeling of embarrassment. In class you were embarrassed by different things. Out here you felt easy and comfortable with some of the boys and girls and a little strange with others. It was very puzzling. But there were so many things that puzzled one, and teased in one's head. You couldn't bother too much about them. He supposed he'd understand a lot more when he grew up. It must be very, very nice to be grown up.

Two or three girls were standing near, talking with their heads close together. He wondered why they always acted that way—as if they had secrets. Vera Lichinsky was one of them. She caught sight of him.

"You going down to Professor Berdorff's for your music lesson?"

"No, not today."

"Why?"

"'Cause."

"Well, 'cause why? It's your regular day, ain't it?"

"It's my birthday."

"Oh." She looked slightly mystified. Nothing ever interfered with her violin lessons.

"I've got a new Bach piece." Vera made it sound important.

"Have you?"

"Yes. It's not very pretty."

"I have a new Bach piece, too."

"Is it pretty?"

"No."

"Is it hard?"

"Yes. It's in four flats."

"I've had pieces in all the keys long time ago. Ain't you?"

"No."

"Well, I've got to go." She turned with an air of serious decision. She did not look back.

"Hello, Parris." Cassandra Tower hung back from the other girls who were walking away, their heads still close together.

Parris blushed.

"Hello, Cassie."

"Do you like Vera Lichinsky?"

"I—I don't know."

"You don't know?"

"Well, I don't know. I guess I like her all right."

Cassandra smiled. "I heard you say today's your birthday. How old are you?"

"Twelve."

"I'm 13. Why don't you have a party?"

"I don't know."

"I'm going to have a party next Saturday."

"Are you?"

"Yes. I'm going to invite you."

"I'd like to come."

"Will your grandmother let you?"

"Of course."

"All right. I'll send you an invitation."

She walked backward for a little way, smiling. Parris smiled, too. She turned and ran until she caught up with her companions.

He walked slowly toward the stile which mounted the tall fence surrounding the school grounds. He did not see a little girl who stood outside watching him through the gap in the boards. She was smaller than Parris, and rather poorly dressed in a faded calico dress. She was extremely blond, and an expression of sweetness—half angelic, half sensuous—gave her a somewhat enigmatic charm.

"Hello, Renee."

"Hello."

They proceeded without further speech along the road toward Parris' home. Renee lived on the von Eln place. Her father, Sven Gyllinson, was the overseer of the nurseries owned by Parris' grandmother. Renee and Parris had played together since they were babies. She was only a few months younger than Parris, but she was a grade behind him in school. Seemingly, they took no notice of each other now. When he picked up a rock and threw it, she threw one also with ridiculously similar gestures. If he swung his book strap from one shoulder to the other, she did, too. Apparently she wished nothing but his company. She was always "tagging" along always had been as long as he could remember. No one teased him about her. Some of the boys had tried that and met with a fury in him that was as astonishing as it was inexplicable. Renee was a "tacky" child, but her father worked for Parris' grandmother, so they decided maybe he had to look out for her.

As they neared home Renee spoke. "I'll be glad when school's out, won't you?"

"Yes."

"I'll be awful glad. We'll go swimmin' then, won't we?"

"Uh huh," he answered indifferently.

"Up in our own pond?"

"Uh huh."

He opened the wicket gate and stood aside for her to pass through. She waved and turned into a lane that led to the overseer's cottage.

* * *

Parris Mitchell's mother had died when he was born, his father less than a year later. Since then he had been cared for by his maternal grandmother. She adored him, and he adored her. Doubtless she spoiled him in some ways, but she had trained him to the observance of an old-fashioned, Old World courtesy that made him somewhat conspicuous.

His grandmother, Marie Arnaut von Eln, was wholly French. Her family came originally from Lorraine. She had been twice married, the second time to a wandering German aristocrat who had come to America to make a fortune. After various enterprises he had bought lands at Kings Row because of some fancied similarity of the soil to that of his native German province. He built a house of foreign fashion, laid out elaborate grounds, and manufactured sufficient wine to drink himself to death.

Marie von Eln was a resourceful woman. She employed French and German labor and turned the vineyards into a nursery. It had prospered, and she was now, 20 years after her husband's death, accounted a wealthy woman.

Kings Row had never known quite what to make of her. She was a "foreigner," but obviously did not fit into the usual categories of what were always derogatorily referred to as "the foreign elements." She had the bearing and manner of an aristocrat, and her sense of humor was of the kind that often made the women of Kings Row uncomfortable.

Madame von Eln spoke French or German by preference. She emphasized, underscored, and generally illumined her discourse with graphic movements of hands, shoulders and eyebrows.

Parris bore a striking resemblance to her.

She was waiting now for him to come home from school. Laying aside the thick reading glass, she gave a twist to the taffeta bow at her throat, and waited. She smiled a little. It was almost a smile of coquetry.

"Bon soir, grand'mere." He held her very tight and kissed her four times on each smooth cheek. He rubbed his face against her hair. "Ma belle grand'mere!"

"Mon enfant." She held him off and put up her lorgnettes. "Tu es fatigue?"

"Moi? Non. Pas du tout."

He laughed. She liked the trick he had of keeping his short square teeth tight together when he laughed.

"Are you hungry?"

"Of course."

Madame called, "Anna!"

A short fat maid appeared so quickly that one suspected that she had been waiting at the door.

"Anna, dass Kind hat Hunger."

The maid smiled broadly. "Was willst du—Milch, Brod—eine Pastete?"

"Was fur Pastete gibt es, Anna?"

"Kirsch—ganz frisch."

The trilingual discussion continued without anyone being aware of the shifts from one tongue to another. Parris decided on the cherry pie.

Madame turned to her desk again. "Go with Anna, please, Parris. I have more work."

After the pie he went directly to his piano practice. The square rosewood piano was old, and the keys were yellow, but it was in good tune. Very slowly, very carefully, counting aloud as he practiced, he attacked the Bach piece "in four flats." He began again at the beginning for the 10th time when his grandmother came to the door.

"What is this that you play?"

"It is an Invention."

"Indeed. Is that something important?"

"Herr Berdorff says so."

"It is extremely ugly. It must be frightful to learn such a thing! Come with me—it is enough of this—this Invention as you call it—and it is your birthday. I have a present for you."

Parris lay in bed listening to the little sounds of the night. He was very happy. It had been a beautiful evening, and his present—all those books! His "belle, belle, belle grand'mere!" He had heard Anna say that Madame was growing old. Old! Some day his grandmother would die — sooner than other boys' mothers who were much younger. Terror seized him. He took the edge of the quilt between his teeth so he wouldn't cry, but it was no use—he was already crying.

No, no, no! Le bon Dieu would never permit that. He remembered once that his grandmother had shrugged her shoulders contemptuously at something Anna said about trusting the good God. Was it—was it possible that his grandmother knew something she had never told him—that perhaps—perhaps there wasn't a bon Dieu at all, just as he had found out when he was a very little boy that there was no Santa Claus and no real giants?

He turned his face down into the pillow and pulled the covering over his head.

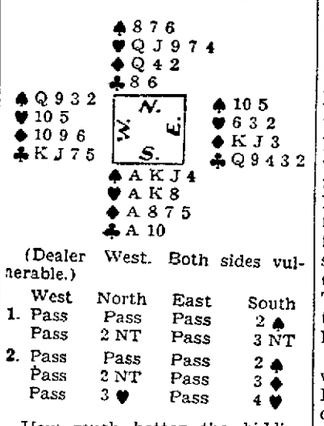
"The Authority on Authorities"

COVER POSSIBILITIES

DURING BOTH the bidding and the play, there are usually some important facts you can not learn positively. It is up to you to deduce them, or figure out what is the most likely situation. Even then you are not sure. Consequently, other things being equal, the best tactics are those which protect you against the largest number of different possibilities. In bidding, this usually means selecting a bid which then gives your partner the largest number of options, dependent on which type of hand he has.



(Dealer West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1. Pass	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT
2. Pass	Pass	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 ♦
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♥

How much better the bidding was at table 2. There, after North had shown he held less than an honor trick or so. South by bidding diamonds gave him a chance to show whether he had any kind of five-card heart suit, or four little spades, without making poor North wonder whether the hand couldn't better be played at a No Trump game. At table 2, North was able to show his hearts at the three level and then let South choose the declaration. At table 1, South by bidding game in No Trump on his second turn, obliged North to guess whether to try the game in hearts or pass.

It turns out that the 3-No Trumps could not be beaten, as nine straight tricks followed the lead of the club 5. But, if there had been need to lose a finesse, or loss of even one trick of any kind, the defenders could have set the contract. At hearts, after winning the club lead, North gave himself three chances to assure the contract. His first, upon having drawn trumps, and playing the diamond A, was to lead toward the diamond Q. If the K lay right, the contract was in. It did not, so that diamond trick and a club were lost and a spade returned by East to the A. Second trial was loss of a diamond hoping the suit would break evenly, which it did, making possible a spade discard. If it had not broken, the spade finesse still could have been tried for a third chance. Just as it should have, the side in the heart game beat those pairs in No Trumps by a total of 20 points, the difference between the two kinds of games.

Oh, yes—where 2-No Trumps was the opening bid and a 3-Hearts response showed a five-card suit, the deal also got played in 4-Hearts.

Your Week-End Lesson.

When one partner is a brilliantly able player of the cards and the other is only fair as a declarer, to what extent should the finer one try to become the declarer, in order to give his skill full chance to pay dividends? And where should he draw the line, preferring to let his less skillful associate play a game?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

My eyes followed those of the driver, and I saw a big car whizzing along the concrete road toward the junction with the mountain road, where he had parked my father's armored car.

I did not verify his excited assertion that the big car was really the armored car which had passed up on the Merritt Parkway, but I was willing to take his word for it.

Both our men evidently had seen the other car at the same time as the driver, and had stepped quickly to the side of the descending road most sheltered from observation by anyone passing along route 7. But the other car slowed up as it neared the junction, and for a frantic second I thought the men in it had seen Gus and Bill, and were planning to get out and investigate them.

But the lessened pace was only for a second, then the car swept on, and our driver gave a grunt of relief.

"They just slowed down to look at that sign which points to Kent," he said, putting our car into gear and proceeding slowly toward the intersection, as both Gus and Bill climbed toward us. When they had came up to us, the driver put a crisp question.

"D'ye think they lamped you?"

"I'm sure they didn't," Bill said, and Gus nodded an assent.

"Don't you think one of us ought to go ahead to the junction, and see if it's coming back?" Gus asked.

"Good idea," the driver said. "Bill, you run down to the junction there, and walk up the road after that car. If you see it coming back, hide yourself. If you don't see it at the end of three minutes, blow your whistle and I'll cut across to the other road and wait for you. Get me?"

"Okay," Bill said, and forthwith set out down the road again, while Gus climbed into the car.

"There's nothing to worry about, Missis Graham," he said, looking at me anxiously, and I smiled confidently at him.

"I'm not worried about anything as long as you are on the job," I told him, and a brick-red flush overspread his cheeks.

"Thank you," he said. After that no word was spoken by any of us until, at the end of three minutes, we heard three blasts of a whistle.

"Sit tight!" the driver said. "We're going places."

Other Car Not Sighted.

He swung the car into the road, then into the concrete road, and from there whipped it into the narrow road at the left, at a speed which left me breathless. When he was well out of sight of the concrete highway he stopped and looked at his watch.

"I hope Bill Steps on it," he said. "I want to get going."

Bill evidently "stepped on it," for it was less than three minutes when he came racing around the corner of the road and brought up opposite our car.

"I ran all the way back," he said, as Gus opened the car door for him, "and I kept looking back. They aren't anywhere in sight."

"I'm glad you hit it up," the driver said. "If I can get some speed out of this bus we can beat that other car to Warren by quite a little. It's quite a bit shorter this way."

"You know what the Chief said about speeding," Gus said, but I interrupted him summarily.

"That rule is in the discard now," I said firmly. "My father himself would tell you so if he were here.

"The fact that those men are on this road proves conclusively to me that they are aiming for the same destination that I am trying to reach," I said. "It is vitally important that I get there not only first but well ahead of them. In my father's name I take all responsibility. Drive as fast as you possibly can."

Mansfield Meets Toledo Central for Regional Title

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Mansfield fans have become more or less reconciled to the prospect of a summer without organized baseball, so I doubt if they can be much perturbed over the outlook for the Ohio State league this coming season.

But there must be a nostalgic flicker of interest among the old Braves' bugs in the doings of the OS loop, and I take it for granted that they will bat a furtive eyelash at the dope, spilled once again, that Joe Donnelly's sprightly circuit probably will not operate in 1942.

These bugs and bugettes (lets not leave out the bugettes) will gather tomorrow at 3 p. m. (game time) in the third base coaching box at Fairground park and shed a silent tear on the spot where grey Grover Hartley once was wont to clap his hands and needle the noodles of our tender young Tribesmen.

* * *

From Tiffin comes the word that Prexy Donnelly stopped off there this week to remind club owners that there's an important league meeting scheduled tomorrow at Lima.

This is the meeting where once again the question of league schedule is supposed to be brought up, and, more important, where club owners are expected to post their $600 forfeit checks to insure player salaries.

And don't be surprised if it winds up like this:

* * *

The owners will moan and groan, alas,
"Let's check the checks. Okay, we pass."

* * *

According to the Tiffin story, Mansfield is not yet OFFICIALLY out of the league—just out, that's all.

Says the Tiffin paper:

"Mansfield has shown no indication of carrying on."

Which assumedly leaves the way still open for Mansfield to carry on if someone slips it the indicator.

* * *

The Tiffin paper goes on:

"There is more than a remote possibility that the loop will operate with four teams, although Sandusky and Marion are said to be interested."

And it points out that with the exception of Tiffin, which has secured the Cleveland backing that once was Mansfield's, and of Lima, which is ready to continue on its own, the league is anything but set.

Fremont lost out on an expected hook-up with St. Louis Cardinals. Fostoria failed to make connections with Detroit, and Hartley has his Findlay club up for sale.

* * *

Rumor has it that Grover would sell the Findlay Oilers to Hank Rigney, Toledo sports promoter, and would buy in and manage the Lima Pandas.

Favorites Advance In Race for Ohio Title

By JAMES EMERSON
(UP Staff Correspondent)

EXCEPT for a startling upset of Columbus South by Dayton Roosevelt, favorites roared into the state Class A regional schoolboy basketball finals much as expected today and a smooth-rolling Bluffton five became favorite to capture the State Class B cage crown in the championship climax at Springfield tonight.

Roosevelt which lost five games during the season uncorked an aggressive man-for-man defense to eliminate the previously once-beaten South crew, 36 to 26, in the initial round of the state Class A regional meet at Dayton last night.

* * *

The second biggest surprise was the battle put up by little Celina against heavily-favored Toledo Central Catholic with Toledo finally winning, 46 to 45, in an overtime clash in the regional at Findlay.

* * *

Xenia Central, Mansfield, Warren, Canton Lehman, Cambridge and Akron North emerged victorious in the other Class A playoffs by fairly safe margins although Cambridge had to sink free throws to beat Steubenville, 43 to 40.

Bluffton advanced to the semi-finals at Springfield by sinking all 11 of its charity throw opportunities and two more field goals than its opponent to eliminate the strong Yorkville aggregation, 35 to 27. The Pirates meet undefeated Bremen and Somerset from Perry county engages Waynesburg from Stark in the semi-finals this afternoon.

Here are the highlights of yesterday's Class A games:

AT DAYTON—Behind, 16 to 12, at halftime, Roosevelt staged a whirlwind finish. Sparked by a diminutive forward, Sammy Zaida, who collected five field goals, Roosevelt made 10 points the last two minutes. Xenia Central romped to its 22nd triumph in 23 games by crushing Cincinnati Roger Bacon, 46 to 31, with little trouble. Xenia's Jack Wilson netted 18 points and the Xenia second stringers played the last quarter.

* * *

AT FINDLAY — Mansfield spotted Bowling Green a 5 to 0 margin and then resurged to win, 36 to 30, in a well-played contest. Bee Gee reduced a 12-point deficit in the fourth period to two points but couldn't go any further. Romnie Waugh of the losers caged 12 points while Mansfield's Paul Dietzel had 10. Celina played Central Catholic off its feet to build up a 25 to 15 lead in the second half before Toledo went to work. The score was 41-all at end of regulation time and then fielders by Hickey and Skeldon and a free throw by Hickey iced the game for Toledo. Don Myers of Celina paced the pointmakers with 17. Hickey had 14.

AT YOUNGSTOWN—Canton Lehman held Lakewood, state runnerup last year, without a field goal for the first 13 minutes and coasted to an easy 28 to 20 victory. Lakewood scored nine of its points in the last quarter after Lehman led, 22 to 9, at the end of the third. Warren unloosed a long range bucket barrage to trim the speedy Akron Kenmore outfit, 50 to 36. After leading only 29 to 25 at halftime, Warren forged a 42 to 28 margin at end of third quarter.

AT DENNISON—Akron North eliminated a high-scoring Greenfield five, 43 to 37, despite a 23-point individual splurge by Greenfield's Don McGrate. Superior height enabled North to control the rebounds under both baskets and Greenfield trailed throughout.

Although outshot, 17 goals to 15, from the field, Cambridge netted 13 free throws to Steubenville's four to subdue the Stubbers, 43 to 40. Cambridge led the entire game and went into a semi-stall in the final four minutes after Steubenville pulled within one point.

Warmerdam Misses Mark

Still Trying to Top 16-Foot Barrier.

CHICAGO —(INS)— That elusive 16-foot mark in the pole vaulting world is still elusive so far as its most covetous pursuer, Cornelium Warmerdam, of the San Francisco Olympic club, is concerned. But most of the 16,000 who viewed the Chicago Relays in the Chicago stadium last night believe that he eventually will reach his goal.

* * *

Fred Wolcott of Rice Institute shared the spotlight with Warmerdam by setting one new world's record and equalling two others in the hurdle events.

* * *

The California school teacher's best pole vault effort last night was 15 feet, 2 inches. The throng cheered Warmerdam as he sped down the 140-foot runway in three attempts at 15 feet, 9 inches, but after each attempt the pole slid off the top bar.

Both world and relay records fell by the wayside in last night's classic. Wolcott in the 40-yard hurdles, set a new world's record by negotiating the distance in 5 seconds flat, knocking one-tenth of a second off the mark set by Allan Tolmich of Detroit. He then equalled the world's record in the 50-yard high hurdles at :06.1 and topped off his evening's performance of equalling his own world's record of :07.2 in the 60-yard hurdles.

Greg Rice, of the New York A. C., led such notables as Gilbert Dodds of the Boston A. A. and Ashland (O.) college across the finishing wire in the two-mile run in the excellent time of 8 minutes, 53 seconds but failed to equal his own record of eight minutes, 51.1 seconds set last year.

Real Marks Top Standings In ABC

COLUMBUS —(AP)— There's a definite "collar" atop the American Bowling congress tournament team standings today.

Schlitz of Milwaukee foamed into second place last night with 3105 total, only 26 behind the pace-setting Budweisers of Chicago.

But that wasn't all that bubbled. Allsports Equipment company of Flint, Mich., scored 2930 for fourth and the Michigan Auto club of Detroit rolled into fifth with 2904. The Adams Funeral home of Akron, O., is third with 2956.

The Schlitz bowlers put together games of 996, 1015 and 1094, their finale being the highest single game of the tournament.

In the singles, Robert Tritschler of Norwood, O., posted 731 to take over the lead, and Frank Purse of Detroit rolled 686 for fifth.

SNEAD AND WEHRLE STILL LEAD FIELD

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla—(INS)—Sam Snead and Wilford Wehrle today led the way into the semi-finals of the national amateur-pro best-ball golf tournament.

The Snead-Wehrle combination yesterday beat Jimmy Hines and Arnold Minkley, 4 and 3, and today was pitted against Chandler Harper and Sam Bates.

COACH QUITS

HAMILTON—(AP)—James Hall ended four years of basketball coaching at Hamilton high school by resigning.

SHAUGHNESSY QUITS JOB AT STANFORD

PALO ALTO, Cal—(INS)—Stanford university's board of athletic control was to hold an emergency meeting today to pick a successor to Clark Shaughnessy who resigned to become head coach at the University of Maryland—and it seemed a foregone conclusion that Jim Lawson was the successor.

Shaughnessy, who in 1940 set the football world on its collective ear with the astonishing success he had with now famous T formation and wound up with top Rose Bowl honors, announced his resignation yesterday through the college's president, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur.

ROOKIES SHINE

TAMPA —(AP)— Ben Wade and George Burpo, two 19-year-old rookies, are making it tough for Manager Bill McKechnie to decide the makeup of the Cincinnati Reds' mound staff.

Moose league keglers, who have been specializing in 600 scores lately, cooled off last night at Colony alleys, and Brig Young's 585 was good enough for top honors. Holda had 583, W. Hipp 582, and Henry Michaels 580.

Kahl and Reno tied for high game with 228.

Fellowship retained its one-game margin over Pilgrims for first place as each team scored 2-1 victories.

Four Teams Left In State Class B Bucket Tourney

By FRITZ HOWELL

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — Ohio crowns its 1942 Class B High school basketball champion tonight at Wittenberg college field house and somewhere among the four semi-finalists clashing this afternoon is a worthy wearer of the crown.

There was no such thing as a favorite as Somerset, from the southeastern district prepared to meet Waynesburg's Mohawks from the northeast and Bluffton of the northwest awaited its game with Bremen's undefeated central district champs in the semi-finals.

* * *

The four survivors are all that remain of the 902 starters in the Class G cage wars, and all must have plenty of talent to get this far.

* * *

In yesterday's games, Bremen ran its winning streak to 25 by beating Lorain Clearview, 42 to 34, wrecking the Lorain victory string of 24 straight contests; Bluffton held Yorkville to a single point in the third period to win a 35 to 27 decision; Somerset wrecked a good Webster team which had been beaten but once in 25 games, 37 to 24, while Waynesburg spotted Ottawa Hills a 9 to 2 lead and then roared back to win 42 to 29.

The Ottawa Hills defeat swept Dave Thompson, six-foot seven inch center, out of the tourney with the two-game scoring record. The huge lad scored 34 points in his two attempts. Next in line is Bremen's sensational red-haired forward, Hughie Jones, who has 32 points.

The Somerset squad, featuring the brother act of Richard and Robert Starkey, has come up with the two big surprises of the tournament. In the opener, the Somsets defeated Tipp City, 38 to 19, doubling the score on a team which had been beaten only once in 22 games. In yesterday's quarterfinals, they erased Webster, 37 to 24, a team which had lost but one of 25 previous games.

* * *

Bremen, the state's only undefeated team in either Class A or Class B, meets a tartar in the Bluffton crew. The four defeats suffered by the Pirates were at the hands of Class A squads. The Blufftons, only Class B team in the western Buckeye loop, won the league title from their Class A rivals.

* * *

Today's schedule: 2 p. m.—Bremen (25-0) vs. Bluffton (18-4); 3 p. m. Somerset (24-6) vs. Waynesburg (27-3); 8 p. m. championship game between winners of afternoon contests.

Step Toward Freshman Play

Committee Opposes But Urges Use of Frosh.

SPRINGFIELD—(AP)—The staid Ohio athletic conference edged a step nearer using freshmen on varsity teams today, as the loop's managers association, composed of coaches and athletic directors, studied a recommendation from a special committee named to delve into the problem.

* * *

The committee went on record last night as favoring retention of the freshman ban during the present emergency. But in the same breath urged the conference to grant permission for the use of freshmen on varsity teams by the 20 member schools desiring to do so. The freshman rule was tossed out during the World war, but re-written into the conference code later.

* * *

The managers association was reported ready to adopt the committee's recommendation today and to pass it along to the conference itself, made up of faculty representatives and athletic directors, which meets May 15 in Oberlin.

An unofficial poll of conference members, conducted by Walter J. Livingston of Denison university, found the conference voting 23 to 12 in favor of using freshmen.

The athletic directors voted 14 to 4 in favor of the proposition, while the faculty representatives gave the proposal a 9 to 8 edge in the off-the-record ballot.

Included in the committee's recommendation was a proposal that the conference put "teeth" into its non-recruiting rule by suspending from membership all schools using athletic department members to contact prospective students.

* * *

H. J. Nichols of Oberlin said: "We feel, with the freshmen rule about to be dropped for the duration of the war, that recruiting should be frowned upon more than ever."

* * *

Should the freshman rule be dropped, athletes would not get a four-year varsity career if the committee's recommendation was accepted. The recommendation urges that each athlete be limited to three seasons of competition in any sport.

Committee members making the recommendations were: Livingston, Nichols, John Van Why of Wittenberg, Harry Ockerman of Bowling Green, L. C. Boles of Wooster, R. J. Kutler of Kenyon, Ray Ride of Case, and Bill Bernlohr of Capital.

Robinson Pushed To Beat Rubio

NEW YORK—(AP)—Ray Robinson, the welterweight walloper from Harlem, owns the longest winning streak in boxing today but he had to unlimber all his artillery to stop Norman Rubio and keep his record clean in last night's punching party at Madison Square Garden.

* * *

For six rounds Rubio took everything Robinson had and reciprocated with an equal dose of dynamite, although he injured his left hand in the opening frame and an x-ray examination later disclosed a fractured metacarpal bone.

* * *

Then came the seventh, and Ray buried the Albany, N. Y., clouter under a barrage of lefts and rights that sent him down for a count of nine. Rubio came up only to be staggered by a terrific left hook a split second before the end of the round—and that was all. Referee Arthur Donovan called it off.

ILLINOIS EDGED IN COLLEGE TOURNEY

NEW YORK—(AP)—Illinois and Colorado, favored to meet in Kansas City next week-end for the national collegiate basketball title, had varied success last night in a pair of contests that ended with identical scores.

The Big Ten sensations were spilled by Kentucky, 46 to 44, in the eastern playoffs at New Orleans while Colorado sneaked by Kansas in the western meeting at Kansas City by the same two points.

Tygers Cop Thriller From Bowling Green

Late Buckets By Winbigler and Altamonte Halt Bobcat Rally

By REX HESS, News-Journal Sports Editor.

ONCE again Mansfield high Tygers find themselves battling for a tournament championship tonight as they tangle with Toledo Central Catholic's racehorse quintet for the Findlay regional title at 8 o'clock in the Findlay high school gym.

The Tygers got one of their few poor games out of their systems last night while defeating Bowling Green 36 to 30 in a thriller that shouldn't have been close after the first quarter.

And Toledo Central had to come from behind to tie the score at 41-41 against Celina and win out in overtime 46-45. Perhaps both teams will be back on their game tonight, and it should be something to see.

* * *

In sharp contrast to their cool-headed game of the Sandusky tournament, the Tygers appeared worried throughout last night's tilt, and the smooth clicking teamwork of the past month was missing. But they had what it took when the going got tough, and that's the mark of a champion.

* * *

Bowling Green's Bobcats tossed a scare into the Tyger camp by jumping away to a 5-0 lead in the first three minutes, but from that point on until the halfway stop, Mansfield outplayed the Cats 18-7. The Tygers held an 8-7 edge at the quarter, and 18-12 margin at the half.

They continued to pile up the lead in the third quarter, outscoring the Cats 9-7 for a 27-19 lead, and early in the final period boosted the margin to 32-21.

Then big Ronnie Waugh got hot, connecting for seven straight points, and Maas added two more, and Mansfield's lead was reduced to two points at 32-30.

* * *

That's when the Tygers showed once more that they had it in the clutch. Bob Winbigler and Joe Altamonte sank a pair of quick buckets, and the game was in the bag.

* * *

For the third straight tournament game, tall Paul Dietzel led the Tygers in scoring with 10 points, bringing his season's total to 223, while Winbigler accounted for eight, and raised his season's record mark to 326.

Joe Romano also checked in with eight points, and Dean Hahn with six, and Altamonte with four at crucial stages.

Maas scored from the side, Barr got a free point and Waugh hooped a short shot to give the Bobcats a 5-0 lead and Mansfield took time out. Dietzel connected on a pivot shot and then sank a follow shot. Waugh scored under the hoop. Romano on a perfect block play went under the hoop for an easy shot. Hahn scored under the bucket on a fast break and Mansfield had the first quarter lead 8-7.

* * *

Romano missed a pair of free shots. Winbigler scored from the side. Waugh got a free toss. Hahn dribbled in for a bucket. Barr also tallied on a dribble-in shot. Hahn hooped a one-hander from the side and Winbigler sank a long heave from the side. Ingraham also got a long side shot. Winbigler caged a one-hander from the side that bounced high in the air three times before finding the cavity. And Mansfield held an 18-12 lead at halftime.

* * *

Waugh missed a free shot. Dietzel got a sucker shot, faking Waugh out of position. Maas made the first of a pair of free tosses and Ingraham sank from the side to cut the margin to 20-15.

Romano drove under the hoop for a lay-up shot. Ingraham again scored from the side. Dietzel connected under the basket and added a free point, and Romano dribbled in for a bucket. Dunn scored from the side. Third quarter score: Mansfield 27, Bowling Green 19:

Romano made good on a pair of free shots, and Altamonte sneaked under the hoop for a bunny. Waugh scored from the side. Dietzel made the second of two free shots, and it was 32-21.

Then Bowling Green made its bid.

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way: Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.
